II. The rural economy in Bengal was in crisis with recurrent famines and declining agricultural output.

Chapter 9 COLONIALISM AND THE COUNTRYSIDE

1. The problem of unpaid revenue

III. The problem lay in identifying individuals who could both improve agriculture and contract to pay the fixed revenue to the state.

IV. The permanent settlement was made with the rajas and taluqdars of Bengal.

V. They were classified as Zamindars and had to pay the revenue that was fixed.

Chapter 9 COLONIALISM AND THE COUNTRYSIDE

1. The problem of unpaid revenue

VI. The Zamindar was not the landowner in the village, but a revenue collector of the state.

VII. The zamindar collected rent from different villages, paid the revenue to the company, and retained the differences as his income.

VIII. He was expected to pay the Company regularly, failing which his estate could be auctioned.

Chapter 9 COLONIALISM AND THE COUNTRYSIDE

2. Why zamindars defaulted on payments?

i. High initial demand: The initial demand was very high. It was felt that if the demand was fixed for all time to come, the Company would never be able to claim a share of increased income from land when prices rose and cultivation expanded. To minimise this anticipated loss, the Company pegged the revenue demand high, arguing that the burden on zamindars would gradually decline as agricultural production expanded and prices rose.

Chapter 9 COLONIALISM AND THE COUNTRYSIDE

2. Why zamindars defaulted on payments?

ii. Imposition of high demand: This high demand was imposed in the 1790s, a time when the prices of agricultural produce were depressed, making it difficult for the ryots (raiyat, used to designate peasants) to pay their dues to the zamindar. If the zamindar could not collect the rent, how could he pay the Company?

Chapter 9 COLONIALISM AND THE COUNTRYSIDE

2. Why zamindars defaulted on payments?

iii. The revenue was invariable: The revenue was invariable, regardless of the harvest, and had to be paid punctually. In fact, according to the Sunset Law, if payment did not come in by sunset of the specified date, the zamindari was liable to be auctioned. iv. Powers of Zamindars limited: The Permanent Settlement initially limited the power of the zamindar to collect rent from the ryot and manage his zamindari.
