Chapter 2 : Federalism

Introduction

Federalism and its Features

Federalism is a democratic form of government in which the power to govern the country is shared or divided between the Central and the State Governments. Largely, both these levels of government work independently of each other.

Examples: India, USA, Australia, Switzerland

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Introduction

In contrast to federalism, there also exists a unitary form of government. In the unitary form of government, all powers are concentrated only in the hands of the Central Government. Provincial governments or local governments may exist, but they are bound to work according to the guidelines provided by the Central Government. Examples: Great Britain, Sri Lanka, North Korea.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Main Features of Federalism:

- There are two or three levels of governments—Central Government, State Government and Local Government.
- Each level of government administers over the same region, but they have their own jurisdiction in matters of administration, taxation and legislation.
- The Government at each level derives its power from the Constitution of the country. Thus, the Central Government cannot dilute the powers of the State or Local Governments.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Main Features of Federalism:

- The basic principles of the Constitution and the rights given to the people cannot be changed by only one tier of the Government. It requires the consent of governments at both levels.
- Courts of the country act as a referee between the Central and the State Governments if any dispute arises between the two.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Main Features of Federalism:

- Both levels of the Government can collect taxes from the people according to the guidelines of the Constitution of the country.
- Federalism thus not only safeguards the unity of the nation but also maintains the regional and linguistic diversities of the people.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

It is to be noticed that both levels of government should agree to the rules of power sharing and trust each other.

Powers of the Central and the State Governments differ from country to country. There are two ways in which a country may become federal. When independent states come together and form one country, they retain their power to maintain their identity. This kind of federation is called 'coming together' federations. Examples: USA and Australia. The second way in which a country can become federal is when it decides to divide its powers between the Central and the State Governments. This may be termed 'holding together' federations. Examples: India and Spain.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Unitary System

There is only one level of government or the sub-units are subordinate to the Central Government.

The Central Government can pass on orders to the provincial or local government.

Federal System

There are two or more levels (or tiers) of government.

The Central Government cannot order the state government to do something.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Unitary System

The central government is supreme, and the administrative divisions exercise only powers that the central government has delegated to them. Their powers may be broadened and narrowed by the central government

Federal System

State Government has powers of its own for which it is not answerable to the central government.

India - A Federal Country:

India is a federal country. It has three tiers of government- the Central Government, the State Government and the local bodies such as municipal corporations and panchayats. There are three lists which contain subjects in which the Union and the State Governments may form laws.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

India - A Federal Country:

The three list are:

Union List: This list contains subjects of national importance on which only the Central Government forms laws. Some of these are defence, foreign affairs, banking and currency. It is important to form uniform laws on these subjects.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

India - A Federal Country:

- State List: This list includes subjects of state and local importance such as agriculture, irrigation, trade and police. State governments form laws on these subjects.
- Concurrent List: Subjects related to the interests of both Central and State Governments are included in this list. This includes forest, education, trade unions and marriage. In case there are conflicts between both wings of the Government, the laws made by the Union Government are deemed as final.

India - A Federal Country:

Subjects which do not fall in the above lists are known as residuary subjects and fall within the jurisdiction of the Union Government. In India, all State Governments do not enjoy equal powers. For example, the state of Jammu and Kashmir enjoys a comparative autonomous status as it has its own constitution. Some states have little powers such as Lakshadweep and Daman and Diu. These are known as Union Territories. The Union Government has greater power over these territories.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Practice of Federalism:

In India, federalism has become successful because of following reasons:

1. Creation of Linguistic States

- After the independence of India in 1947, many states were created based on the languages which were spoken by the people such as Maharashtra, Punjab and West Bengal.
- Some states were created because of their unique geographical position, cultural, ethnic identities such as Uttarakhand, Nagaland and Jharkhand.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Practice of Federalism:

2. Language Policy

- After Independence, there was a great deal of confusion as to which language should be the official language of the country. While Hindi-speaking states wanted Hindi to be declared as the national language, many non-speaking states wanted English to remain as the official language of the country.
- Candidates appearing for any Central exams may opt to write exams in any one of these scheduled languages.

Practice of Federalism:

- The leaders of our country adopted a very cautious attitude while forming the language policy. Hindi, which is spoken by about 40% of our population, was declared as the official language. Many languages were also recognised as Scheduled Languages by the Constitution. Apart from Hindi, there are 21 scheduled languages.
- States have their own official languages, and all government work is done in the official language of the concerned state.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Practice of Federalism:

Such kind of an arrangement has helped in preserving the culture of many linguistic groups and has maintained the diversity of our country.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Practice of Federalism:

3. Centre-State Relations

- After Independence, there were only few parties which formed governments at the centre and at the state levels. When rival parties formed the Government at the state level, the Central Government tried to misuse its powers by dismissing the State Governments. This weakened the federal spirit of our constitution.
- However, the condition improved after 1990 when many regional parties emerged in different states.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Practice of Federalism:

- This also marked the beginning of the coalition government. Two or more parties formed the Government at the centre in the absence of a clear majority. This led to a new era of power sharing and respecting the independent working of the State Governments.

Thus, the principle of sharing of power has become more effective today than it was in the earlier years after Independence.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Practice of Federalism:

4. Decentralisation in India

Apart from the Central and the State Governments, when the powers are also given to the local bodies such as municipal corporation or panchayats, it is called decentralisation.

Decentralisation of powers is important because certain problems of the people can be effectively solved by the local bodies as the latter has a better idea of the problems which are faced by people at the local level.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Functions of marketing:

In 1992, the Constitution was amended to make local government more powerful and responsible. These are

- It is obligatory to hold elections for choosing members of local governmental institutions.
- Seats are reserved for people belonging to scheduled castes and scheduled tribes and other backward classes in local bodies.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Functions of marketing:

- One-third of the seats are reserved for women.
- State Election Commission was constituted in the states for holding elections in government bodies.
- It is mandatory for the State Governments to share powers and revenues with local bodies.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Structure of Local Bodies:

1. Panchayati Raj:

Local bodies in villages are known as Panchayati Raj. Each village, or a group of villages in some States, has a gram panchayat. This is a council consisting of several ward members, often called panch, and a president or sarpanch. They are directly elected by all the adult population living in a village or ward. Gram Panchayat is the decision-making body for the entire village.

Structure of Local Bodies:

- The Panchayat works under the overall supervision of the Gram Sabha. All the voters in the village are its members. It has to meet at least twice or thrice in a year to approve the annual budget of the gram panchayat and to review the performance of the Gram Panchayat.
- At the district level, many panchayats form a body known as panchayat samiti or block or mandals. The member of Panchayat Samiti representative are elected by all the Panchayat members in that area.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Structure of Local Bodies :

- All panchayat samitis or mandals in the district collectively constitute the Zilla Parishad. All members of the Zilla Parishad are elected. MLAs and members of the Lok Sabha are also members of the Zilla Parishad.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Structure of Local Bodies:

2. Municipal Corporations:

- Urban local bodies in small towns are known as municipalities. Large cities have municipal corporations. Both local bodies consist of representatives elected by the people.
- The Municipal Chairperson is the head of the municipality, while the Mayor is the head of the Municipal Corporation.

Chapter 2 : Federalism

Structure of Local Bodies:

This new system of local government is the largest experiment in democracy conducted anywhere in the world. Constitutional status for local government has helped to deepen democracy in our country. It has also increased women's representation and voice in our democracy.
